

Working With Women Who

Working with women who would benefit from early intervention

Anthony Shannon, Director Early Intervention, Volunteering & Youth | Child & Family | Strategy, Policy & Commissioning

As Director, Early Intervention, Volunteering and Youth, NSW Communities and Justice, Anthony leads a range of child protection early intervention and youth participation programs, and the NSW Volunteering Strategy. Anthony has held a number of positions across Communities and Justice, over 17 years, at Head Office leading state-wide early intervention, child protection and homelessness reforms, and at District level, managing NGO disability and community services funding, and community development and sector partnerships. Previous to Communities and Justice, Anthony was ten years in the NGO sector, leading youth service organisations.

Claire Edmonds, A/Manager, Early Intervention, Volunteering & Youth | Child & Family | Strategy, Policy & Commissioning

Claire leads the implementation and program management of Family Connect and Support, a state-wide early intervention and case coordination service in the Early Intervention, Volunteering and Youth Directorate, NSW Communities and Justice. Claire has worked in NSW Government for more than a decade, with policy experience in disability and carers, and in program management roles including in youth mentoring and ageing. Claire has also been part of teams tasked with reviewing out of home care and implementing operations and practice projects as part of The Keep Them Safe reforms.

Working With Women Who

Before joining the NSW Government, Claire worked as an Investigation Officer for the NSW Ombudsman and in the NGO sector in community and sector development.
